

2017 Northern Plains Winter Weather Workshop

Call for Papers

We envision this conference as an opportunity for meteorologists, practitioners, and enthusiasts in the public-sector, private-sector, academic, broadcast, and emergency-management communities to collaborate and share ideas before the worst of the winter weather arrives. We welcome presentations about winter weather and all sectors of non-severe-weather meteorology, emergency management, and related topics.

SCSU is first and foremost a teaching university, and we exemplify our student-centered focus by giving students as many opportunities to present as possible. So, we welcome presentations from both graduate and undergraduate students at any college or university on any weather topic, regardless of season, scale, or scope.

Abstracts requested by 1 October 2017.
